Tom is in the early stages of his Landscape Architecture career and has experience working on various residential projects in NSW and large open space design in the ACT.

Tom uses his graphic presentation skills to focus on human interaction within the landscape, whilst incorporating a mix of existing and new landscape elements in designs.

Tom has experience helping deliver landscape packages from concept design through to construction documentation.

He is currently developing his skills across 3D modelling using Revit and Lumion. Tom is focusing on advancing his proficiency in design communication using digital BIM software in conjunction with industry specific technical documentation methods.

In his spare time, you will find Tom consuming anything remotely to do with golf, often thinking of ways to 'improve' the golf course to match his preferred shots.
