Jackson joined SPACELAB in 2021 and has quickly established himself as a determined advocate in the pursuit of his clients' projects.

Jackson has earned a reputation for tenacious attention to detail in things that matter. His understanding of planning legislation, the particular nuances of the Territory Plan and its interface with the National Capital Plan, have been of great value to larger greenfield and urban renewal projects he is working on.

Jackson's experience includes projects across the ACT, NSW, and VIC. These projects encompass a range of residential, mixed use and commercial developments, with Jackson's work ethic and competency seeing these projects through to completion.

He also has experience in liaising with a wide array of entities including bushfire, environmental and other government agencies.

In his spare time (he would say he has little) you will likely find Jackson debating the skills or not of various sports teams or at near warp speed on snow skis.
