SPACELAB worked in collaboration with the Stella Bella Little Stars Foundation and Construction Control to upgrade the existing landscape of their children's centre in Fyshwick.

The project included providing a new play space for critically and terminally ill children, whilst not excluding them from other children's playspace. The centre often has children that are unable to participate in outdoor play due to inadequate play spaces. This upgrade provides equal and inclusive access for all children within the centre.

The new play areas feature new cubby houses/play structures, varying soft and hard surfaces, dry creek beds with timber footbridges and a farmyard area. Planting provides varying textures and softness whilst being hardy enough to withstand the rigors of children playing who have a variety of abilities and are of differing ages.
