Richard is an experienced town planner and urban designer and is the Principal Planner with SPACELAB. Richard has over 15 years' experience in town planning gained from his time with the National Capital Authority and as Managing Director of Purdon Planning.

Richard brings extensive technical and leadership skills along with a proven track record providing solutions to complex design, technical and process related challenges. Over the last decade, Richard has been involved with delivery of some of the largest and technically challenging mixed use, multi-unit dwelling developments within the ACT including the Republic Belconnen, which boasts 1,300 apartments, a hotel, shopping and office space. Richard also had an important role in the delivery of the Yowani Country Club redevelopment. This proposal involved design, strategic planning and ultimately development application work. The project will result in a 1,000 dwelling mixed use development integrating with the Lyneham Sporting Precinct and a rejuvenated golf course expected to attract national golfing tournaments in the future.

Richard's ability to liaise with community stakeholders, technical experts and government representatives is invaluable in driving good planning outcomes for our clients. Richard has also built strong relationships with key community interest groups as part of his extensive experience in community engagement.

In Richard's spare time, if he is not camping on the coast with his family or mountain bike riding, you will often find him at a concert or music gig which could be anywhere from folk to rock to EDM.
