Joseph's Gate, located on Taralga Road in Goulburn, NSW is a unique residential estate development comprising of 113 residential blocks, seamlessly integrated into an existing heritage setting.

SPACELAB worked closely with the project team to deliver an urban layout and landscape open space proposal which carefully recognised the special elements of the place including the former orphanage building, and the entry avenue lined with mature Monterey Pines. The Wollondilly River running along the eastern boundary also connects the estate to one of Goulburn's natural recreation assets, with a series of footpaths and pedestrian bridges joining into the broader River Trail Walk.

The streets of the estate are landscaped with new deciduous tree plantings to provide shade during the summer months and improved solar access in winter.

The open space is landscaped with the community in mind, with a network of walking trails connecting the urban streets to the open space and the local playground.

The degraded creek line in the open space was stabilised and re-planted as a community and biodiversity asset.
